SILHOUETTE LINE-UP

The silhouette highlight for fall is the "asym-metric" look . . . wherein one side of the dress differs from the other yet maintains a happy balance of line. Probably no one style is more flattering to almost every woman. There are so many ways that this look is achieved:

- a. Buttons diagonally down back.
- b. A closure starting high on the right shoulder and veering sharply toward the left hip.
- c. Slanting drapery, starting either at the waist or hip, and ending at the hemline or slightly lower.

This style is a joy for you who are 5' 5" or under, but should be worn cautiously by your taller sister, as any vertical interest increases the illusion of height.

Skirts are slowly shortening, but longer panels at sides or back made the newer lengths barely noticeable.

Collars in every size and shape are a "must" for Fall. The upstanding types particularly, act as a lovely frame for your face, especially since the popularity of the short hair-do is continuing. Even where the decol-etage is low, "cuff" collars are frequently seen.

Do have at least one dress with a flattering plunge or portrait neckline. Probably no other fashion note adds so much spice to an otherwise simple and conservative wardrobe.

SUGGESTION

For you who are planning "Back-to-School" ward-robcs, don't overlook Botany's colorful Clan Tartans. These really authentic plaids seam so easily into fash-ionable dresses and suits for the younger set. Do com-plete the outfit with a perky plaid beret or calot of your own making.
